

Democrats Heighten Attack On Indochina War

By MIKE SHANAHAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Charging the nation faces the prospect of endless war, Democrats have heightened attacks on President Nixon's Indochina policies, despite administration insistence a strict timetable would lessen the chance of peace.

W. Averell Harriman, a former ambassador to the Paris peace talks, said Friday that, although the President "claims credit for winding down the war, in fact it has been expanded into Cambodia and Laos."

Speaking as chairman of the Democratic Policy Council's Committee on International Affairs, Harriman said: "Since the President has indicated he does not expect a negotiated solution, the administration's policies offer the prospect of an endless war."

Harriman, joined by former Defense Department official Paul C. Warnke, called on Nixon to announce a total withdrawal of American troops from Southeast Asia by the end of the year.

A policy of complete withdrawal this year will obtain the speedy release of our men who are prisoners of war," said a statement issued under auspices of the Democratic National Committee.

Nixon's national security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, replied that a fixed date for U.S. withdrawal would remove any incentive for Hanoi to negotiate a peace.

In the Senate, meanwhile, acting Democratic Leader Robert Byrd said he doubts Americans would support an invasion of North Vietnam by South Vietnamese troops.

"There would be a great deal" of support in the Senate for a Democratic resolution to bar American fliers from aiding such a move, the West Virginia senator added.

The resolution by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and 18 other Democrats was offered as South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu was quoted in Saigon as saying a thrust to the north is not long away. His press secretary said Thieu was misquoted.

The 19-member Democratic group also called for total withdrawal from Vietnam within two years, a deadline Republican leader Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said was motivated by "sheer politics."

"They are trying to second-guess the President on when the final withdrawal will come," the Pennsylvanian said.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., noting administration statements that American combat troops now can be used to protect rescue forces entering Laos in search of downed airmen, predicted an even greater American involvement in Indochina.

"We keep making the same mistakes over and over," he said. "We endanger American lives by getting involved in wars we should stay out of. Then, to protect them, we endanger still more American lives."

Pentagon and State Department officials claimed the policy, which they termed protective encirclement, marks no increase in the U.S. role in Laos. But there was no immediate answer to what would happen if rescuing helicopter crew members or

South Vietnamese Recapture Hill 31

By GEORGE ESPER
SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese military headquarters claimed its soldiers recaptured Hill 31 along the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos today, but they were reported surrounded by two North Vietnamese regiments at a nearby base. Much heavy fighting was reported in Laos and Cambodia.

U.S. fighter-bomber pilots knocked out seven Soviet-made tanks in the battle to retake the hill. South Vietnamese spokesmen claimed 1,000 enemy dead in three days of fighting there, some of it hand-to-hand.

Official spokesmen said they had no figures on South Vietnamese casualties, but officers in the field said they were heavy Hill 31 is eight miles inside Laos and north of Highway.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Zuan Lam, commander of the 16,000 South Vietnamese in Laos, said his troops had regrouped and were reinforced after losing Hill 31 Friday. Under an umbrella of American helicopter gunships, they attacked North Vietnamese positions and had retaken half of the hill, he said.

In Saigon, a spokesman for the South Vietnamese command said: "The fighting in Laos has become intense. That is what we expected before the operation started. We would like to see the enemy stand and fight with us, and the enemy is now doing what we expected them to do."

The command also claimed a task force operating in Cambodia with U.S. combat air support wiped out a North Vietnamese battalion of 400 men.

Hundreds of Saigon troops, some in armored personnel carriers and tanks, swept across Highway 7 in Cambodia about 100 miles north of Saigon where they ran into the enemy battalion near the town of Kandal Chrum.

Saigon headquarters claimed 371 North Vietnamese troops were killed under the bombardment of tanks, artillery and aircraft.

Headquarters said South Vietnamese forces suffered 141 casualties, at least 98 of them wounded. Three soldiers were listed as dead and 41 others were reported "either killed or wounded."

The parallel drives, more than 300 miles apart, are aimed at destroying North Vietnamese and Viet Cong base camps and supply depots and disrupting Hanoi's supply network that extends southward along the Ho Chi Minh trail through the panhandle of Laos into South Vietnam and Cambodia. Highway 7 is a key supply route that leads into the southern half of South Vietnam.

Democrats Heighten Attack On Indochina War

World News In Brief

TAIWAN DISAGREES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The China section of President Nixon's "state of the world report" has generated heated disagreement from Taiwan, based on a belief the outlines of a U.S. "two-China" policy are now clearly visible.

The chief objection to the 65,000-word written report was Nixon's assessment that a calmer mood is developing on mainland China and with it an opportunity for the People's Republic of China — the Peking government — to normalize relations with its world neighbors, including the United States.

FLASH FLOODS

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — A Rio office worker said his usual 20-minute bus trip home took 11 hours because of flash floods that swept this city. Along the way he saw human corpses floating in the streets and heard the screams of people trapped in cars.

Officials said the death toll would be at least 50 and possibly more. The semi-official Radio Nacional said about 100 persons are missing.

ASTRONAUTS FREED

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 14 astronauts, calling their moon mission "a super success," were released from quarantine Friday and start a round of public appearances here today.

Alan B. Shepard Jr., Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell were released from the isolation of the Lunar Receiving Laboratory 14½ hours earlier than originally planned. They spent their first night at home in 47 days.

Firemen Investigate Gas Fumes

The smell of gas on the 1400 block of Orange Ave. in Red Bluff caused citizens and firemen brief concern yesterday, before the source was discovered.

Firemen traced the lingering fumes to a home which was locked and apparently unoc-

DEPORTATION DELAY

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — A 19-year-old Army draftee who hijacked a plane with 97 persons to Vancouver has gained a delay in deportation proceedings.

British Columbia Supreme Court Justice A.G. Rutan granted a court order Friday requiring immigration authorities to produce Chapin Scott Paterson, Shingle Springs, Calif., in court Monday to show cause why he should not be released from their custody.

STRIKE DELAY HOPE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another negotiating session was called today in an effort to head off a possible nationwide railroad strike Monday.

Some progress was made Friday in talks between the AFL-CIO United Transportation Union and the Railway Labor Conference.

NARCOTICS RAID

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. 7th Air Force announced today the apprehension of about 40 American airmen following a month-long investigation into a narcotics ring at the air base at Cam Ranh Bay.

A FAILING MARK

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Democratic Senate leader James Mills — the educator-politician who refused to let Gov. Reagan give his welfare message in person to the legislature — has given the Republican governor a failing mark in history.

Reagan had claimed Mills' refusal marked the first time in history "a governor has been refused a right to address the legislature."

cupied, and more specifically to the home's garage.

Breaking the lock, firemen were in the process of trying to locate the gas leak, when the owner arrived and explained that he had earlier discharged some gas from a portable tank.

Many Honor Olga Wahrmund At Reception For 90th Birthday

A host of friends attended the reception honoring Mrs. Olga Wahrmund on her 90th birthday. The event was hosted by her son-in-law and daughter, George and Violet Clark of Red Bluff, in the Yellow Room at the Corning Methodist Church.

Mrs. Wahrmund has been a resident of the area since 1955. She moved from southern California to be near her daughter and family who had moved to the El Camino district in 1948. Despite her age, Mrs. Wahrmund, an active 90, prefers to live in her own home, does all her cooking, cleaning and takes care of her yard with the exception of mowing. She likes to can, and her Christmas gifts of jams, jellies and pickles are treasured by her family.

Following the invocation by the Rev. Charles Silberstein, Mrs. Clark gave a history of her mother's life.

She was born to August and Maria Alberthal on Feb. 20, 1881 in a log cabin located in Dry Hollow, Gillespie County, in Texas. The youngest of three daughters, she was so small at birth that they placed her in a shoe box.

Since there were no sons, two of the girls helped around the farm and the other sister helped in the house. Olga walked three and a half miles to the school where the teacher taught 60 pupils from the first through the eighth grades.

She often went fishing with her father and humorous incidents were related by Mrs. Clark of the "girl who caught fish when no one else could."

Olga and Hugh Wahrmund were married on Nov. 27, 1901. Four days before the wedding, they began preparations for the wedding dinner for 65 people, which was served at noon after the 10:30 a. m. ceremony. They baked 21 layer cakes in addition to the turkey with all the trimmings, pies and cookies. Later in the day they served supper to the same group.

The couple had three children, Alvin, Violet and Vera. The latter died in the flu epidemic in 1918.

The couple became members of the Methodist Church during one of the old-fashioned camp meetings, and both taught Sunday School classes for many years.

Due to Mr. Wahrmund's ill health, the doctor ordered a change of climate and in 1923 the family moved to Los Angeles County. His death occurred in 1944.

After moving north, Mrs. Wahrmund joined the Methodist Church here and also became a member of the El Camino Grange.

Among relatives attending the reception were the Clark's son and family Mr. and Mrs. Richard Howthorne and children, David, Bethanne, Teresa, Kenneth and Jimmy of Sacramento, and son-in-law, Jack Pesterfield and daughter, Susan, of Redding.

Assisting with the reception were Mrs. Florence Ullrich, Mrs. Edith Pesterfield, Mrs. Richard Hawthorne and Mrs. Mildred Koth of Corning.

The guest book was handled by a great granddaughter, Susan Pesterfield, and Lanita Clark.

A white lace tablecloth, underscored by pink, held the silver service and refreshments. The white napkins were imprinted with the birthdate in gold.

Two of the honoree's favorite songs, "How Great Thou Art" and "Blessed Assurance," were sung by Neitta, Jeannie and Donna Day.

The family had requested no gifts, that it was to be a time of social visiting. Mrs. Wahrmund was very pleased with the "good, warm handshakes like we used to have in Texas."

Olive Marketing Order Hearing

A public hearing to consider proposals for amending the federal marketing agreement and order program for olives grown in California was announced by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The hearing will begin at 9 a.m., March 3, in Courtroom No. 2 of the Federal Building, 1130 "O" Street, Fresno, California.

USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service officials said the hearing was requested by the Olive Administrative Committee, which administers the program would:

1. Define several new terms used in the marketing agreement and order.
2. Add authority for production research projects.
3. Change minimum size requirements for olives used for halved, sliced, chopped, or minced styles.
4. Authorize restrictions as to the percentage of available olives that may be used for halved, sliced, chopped or minced styles.
5. Provide new tolerances for the required sizes of whole ripe canning olives.

6. Revise the incoming regulations and require handlers of canned ripe olives to give notice to the committee prior to receiving olives for use as green or "tree-ripened" styles.
7. Amend the "interhandler transfer" provisions to regulate any handler who ships olives to handlers outside California.
8. Reallocate representation, between cooperative and independent handler organizations, on the Olive Administrative Committee.

C&MS officials said the hearing notice and proposals are being mailed to all known growers and handlers of California olives.

Copies also may be obtained from Joe Perrin, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Marketing Field Office, 1130 "O" St., Fresno, Calif. 93721, or from the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Consumer and Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

FROST WARNINGS OUT — Orchardists were alerted to probable frost this week and were seen out testing their equipment. In recent years the trend has been away from orchard heaters to 67 degree water sprinkling. Tehama County grower Courtney Bovee claims he covers his 90 acres more thoroughly with this system and no longer requires the help required when emergency strikes. The flick of a switch sets the operation going instantly, with no lag between rows.

Cranston Bills Would Permit Bargaining

Senator Alan Cranston, D-Calif., has co-sponsored two bills to give farmers the right to bargain collectively with processors and other commercial food buyers.

Both bills, the National Agricultural Bargaining Act and the National Agricultural Marketing Act, would grant farmers "greater economic muscle in the marketplace by giving them a better means of controlling the pricing and production policies under which they operate," Cranston said.

"Farmers presently are in a very poor economic position. Not only are they at the mercy of weather, blight, and insects, but they also have no control over the prices they will receive for their farm products," Cranston pointed out.

"Farmers are forced to accept whatever is offered by way of a market price or federal farm programs."

"This weak bargaining position has caused many American farmers to lag far behind other economic segments of our society. The general parity ratio of farm prices to the cost of production has reached a 37-year low."

"Although the cost of food for the consumer has continued to rise, farmers have not shared in this increase."

Cranston cited as an example the fact that the farmer receives only 2.7 cents for the wheat in a pound loaf of white bread, just 12 per cent of the retail price.

"Increasingly, the greater percentage of the total price for a food product goes to various middlemen — advertisers, shippers, processors and marketing specialists," the Senator said. "Housewives are paying more, but farmers are getting less."

As a result, farmers are increasingly being forced out of business. The number of farms in California decreased from 81,000 to 56,000 between 1964 and 1971 although the average acreage and value per farm in California rose.

The farmer bargaining bills co-sponsored by Senator Cranston were introduced by Senator Walter F. Mondale, D., Minn.). Similar legislation had been introduced in past years to stimulate discussion and debate over the merits of farmer bargaining power.

The Senate Agriculture Committee held exploratory hearings in 1968, but no legislation was reported. The California Senator indicated that he was co-sponsoring this legislation this year because, "I believe it is time to examine the specifics of this concept and to encourage reasoned debate on the benefits and problems associated with farmer bargaining."

"It is time to develop workable legislation to provide farmers with the 'self-help tools' they need to enhance their economic position."

Cranston stressed that he is "not wedded to the specifics of either bill" but that he endorses "the principle of farmer bargaining."

The National Agricultural Bargaining Act would amend the National Labor Relations Act to follow for farmer bargaining to:

- Create an independent 5-member National Agricultural Relations Board to provide administrative, technical and supportive assistance to farmer Marketing Committees and buyers Purchasing Committees.
- Provide that when the price of a commodity was felt to be unfair, farmers could initiate a referendum, conducted by the board, to select a committee to negotiate fairer prices with a committee representing the purchasers of that commodity.
- Provide that if no agreement were reached, a 3-man "Joint Settlement Committee," comprised of a farmer, a purchaser, and a neutral party, would resolve the dispute. Their decision would be binding.
- Provide that the marketing committees could also recommend production and marketing controls which commodity producers could accept or reject in a second referendum.

The National Agricultural Marketing Act would provide for farmer bargaining through the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 to:

- Amend the Act to make any agricultural commodity eligible for a marketing order, if approved by producers of that commodity in a referendum.
- Provide for the establishment of minimum prices through collective bargaining between producers and purchasers as well as through the present hearing procedures conducted by the Secretary of Agriculture.
- Provide that prices would not be binding until approved by the handlers of 50 per cent of the volume of the commodity and by the Secretary.
- Provide that the Secretary would conduct all referendums as well as the authority outlined in current law.

Cranston emphasized that the bills are complementary, that Congress could enact one or both. He also stated that "the concept of farmer bargaining is not meant to supersede present farm programs, but to increase their effectiveness."

PRODUCT PROLIFERATION

A recent survey showed that 52 per cent of the food products currently on supermarket shelves were not there ten years ago; they are new products.

Shorter crops of cling peaches, pears, olives and grapes last year contributed to slightly lower total tonnage than was inspected in 1969, but plum inspections were the highest

Pesticide Container Accumulation Cleanup March 8 Through 11

Pesticide containers are to be collected at the Tehama Agricultural Commissioner's Office grounds at 1760 Walnut St., Red Bluff, from March 8 through March 11.

Pesticide residue will be accepted for disposal at the same time.

That was the word this week from Agricultural Commissioner Donald R. Hill. It's part of a program to clean up accumulations of dangerous material and dispose of it in a safe manner.

The users are to take the containers and pesticide residue to the collection point. The containers are to be rinsed before delivery there.

Since Tehama County does not have an approved decontamination station or available transportation facilities, Hill explained, it becomes the task of the applicator, farmer or commercial operator to process and transport the containers. He gave these instructions:

After carefully reading labels

on containers, note whether any substantial concentrate remains in them. If any remains, it should be collected in a suitable container for transport to the Agricultural Commissioner's office.

This table is suggested by the State Department of Agriculture for rinsing empty containers:

under 5 gallons, 1 pint of water and 1 tablespoon of detergent; 5 gallons, 2 quarts water; 2 tablespoons detergent; 15 gallons, 1.5 gallons water, 1/4 cup detergent; 30 gallons, 3 gallons water, 1/2 cup detergent; 55 gallons, 5 gallons water, 1 cup detergent.

Rinsing should be done carefully so as to avoid contact with the pesticides being treated. Rinse water may be disposed of in areas presenting no danger to persons, animals or water ways. Containers should be allowed to drain thoroughly.

After thorough draining, containers are to be taken to the Agricultural Commissioner's grounds from March 8 through

Mar. 11 for inspection and safe storage until being removed to the Red Bluff dump for final disposition.

Personnel at the dump are not authorized to accept containers for final disposition without clearance from the Agricultural Commissioner, he said, and the limited availability of equipment prevents their final disposition at the dump from being a continuous operation.

30 and 55 gallon drums, provided they are bung tight and in sound condition, may be brought to the Agricultural Commissioner's grounds for secure storage and later decontamination by a professional establishment.

In the future, all pesticide users are urged to rinse containers on the spot and to empty residues into spray apparatus, thus leaving containers in a much safer condition.

A final word of caution: Use special care when handling containers bearing the label "Poison" and the traditional skull and crossbones.

Shipping Point Inspectors Keep Checking Tonnage

Two and eight-tenths million tons is a lot of fruits, vegetables and nuts, but that is what the California Department of Agriculture's Shipping Point inspectors certified for quality, condition, grade, size and pack during 1970.

Approximately 60 per cent of the total inspections were on products for fresh market and 40 percent were on products for canning, freezing or drying, according to Hubert R. Davis, chief of the Bureau of Shipping Point Inspection.

Fruit Leaf Roller Out Earlier Than Usual

California fruit growers and home gardeners are warned by the State Department of Agriculture that oak and many other trees and shrubs are being threatened by an early emergence of the fruit tree leaf roller, Archips argyrospilus.

Because of the unseasonably warm weather this winter, the fruit tree leaf roller is already beginning to emerge on rose bushes in Southern California, according to department entomologist Ronald Hawthorne.

"Right now there are lots of this insect's eggs on both fruit and shade trees in Sacramento, Placer, and surrounding counties," Hawthorne said, "and we can expect these eggs to begin hatching by late February, more than a month earlier than usual. They will emerge in the San Joaquin Valley a week or two later."

The fruit tree leaf roller has been a serious pest of oak trees.

Promotion Campaign For Cling Peaches Begins On March 29

An "Action Now" promotion campaign for California canned cling peaches will be carried on by the Producers Canning Cling Advisory Board this spring, according to State Director of Agriculture Jerry W. Fielder.

The campaign will be financed entirely through assessments of California growers of cling peaches.

Primary objective of the program is to increase sales substantially during the 1971 spring selling season through greater consumer awareness of the value and versatility of canned cling peaches.

The television campaign will be carried on in 15 major markets across the United States during a six week period beginning March 29.

Market areas in California selected for the television campaign are Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Sacramento-Stockton-Modesto.

From 150 to 200 television spots are being scheduled in each of the 15 markets.

The California cling peach industry has been faced with an oversupply of the fruit, Fielder explained. The industry hopes to reduce the need for additional surplus control measures by attempting to gain wider use of the abundant supply of canned cling peaches in the American diet.

Canned peaches are on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's "Plentiful Foods" list for March.

California produces virtually all of the cling peaches grown in the United States.

Addressing the statewide convention of the California Young Farmers Association here, Dr. Moulton said that in the past 20 years the number of farms in the United States has declined 50 per cent — but these "often-quoted figures result primarily from the exodus of part-time and other marginal farm operations."

Since 1960, the economist said, there has been "an almost unbroken increase in the number of commercial-size operations," on a national scale.

The 1969 total of 568,000 farms realizing $20,000 or more in sales is 237 per cent of the 1960 total of only 240,000, said the university expert.

And although they represent only 19 per cent of all farms, these "commercial size" operations account for 59 per cent of farm income, he added.

"The implications of these figures is clear," said Dr. Moulton. "The commercial farm operation in the U. S. has become an increasing challenge, tending to attract operators, rather than to repel them."

"What of the future; will today's trends continue?" the economist asked.

Then he cited numerous forces that will influence farm income, farm profits, the conduct of farm business.

"They will change the very nature and quality of farm life itself," he said.

The major force that will shape agricultural business is the consumer, and to cope with this successfully, the structure of the agricultural economy "must become marketing-oriented," said the speaker.

"Each one of us who is to survive must become an active part of the future marketing process."

How much, if any, does the use of agricultural chemicals contribute to environmental pollution?

This is the theme of a joint meeting sponsored by the Tehama County Farm Advisors' and Agricultural Commissioner's offices. The meeting will be held in the Red Bluff Union High School Cafeteria on Thursday, March 11, 1971, beginning at 8 p.m.

Thema County Agricultural Commissioner Don Hill will discuss regulation of the uses of agricultural chemicals comparing current standards to previous and expected standards.

Farm advisors Ken Ellis, Joe Osgood, and Bill Richardson will discuss the current uses of agricultural chemicals and the outlook for future uses of these materials.

A panel representing chemical companies, farmers, regulating agencies, research agencies, and related fields will discuss questions from the audience.

Questions or topics for discussion can be sent to the Farm Advisors Office, P. O. Box 370 or the Agricultural Commissioner's Office, P. O. Box 38, both in Red Bluff.

The public is welcome according to farm advisor Joe Osgood.

Farming Not On The Decline—Economist

REDDING — Farming on the decline in the United States? Not so, says Dr. Kirby Moulton, Agricultural Extension economist with the University of California, Berkeley. Fewer farmers — yes, but less farm opportunity, no.

Addressing the statewide convention of the California Young Farmers Association here, Dr. Moulton said that in the past 20 years the number of farms in the United States has declined 50 per cent — but these "often-quoted figures result primarily from the exodus of part-time and other marginal farm operations."

Since 1960, the economist said, there has been "an almost unbroken increase in the number of commercial-size operations," on a national scale.

The 1969 total of 568,000 farms realizing $20,000 or more in sales is 237 per cent of the 1960 total of only 240,000, said the university expert.

And although they represent only 19 per cent of all farms, these "commercial size" operations account for 59 per cent of farm income, he added.

"The implications of these figures is clear," said Dr. Moulton. "The commercial farm operation in the U. S. has become an increasing challenge, tending to attract operators, rather than to repel them."

"What of the future; will today's trends continue?" the economist asked.

Then he cited numerous forces that will influence farm income, farm profits, the conduct of farm business.

"They will change the very nature and quality of farm life itself," he said.

The major force that will shape agricultural business is the consumer, and to cope with this successfully, the structure of the agricultural economy "must become marketing-oriented," said the speaker.

"Each one of us who is to survive must become an active part of the future marketing process."

Marketing still will serve the major food markets of today, the retail and the institutional, said Dr. Moulton, but the institutional — dealing with prepared meals for hospitals, schools, the armed forces, restaurants and similar organization — will account for a far larger share of total food sales than it does today. And much of this market will come from "food converter" firms, which will be producing frozen prepared meals.

"The most important problem in American agriculture today is to provide a sufficient quantity of the right products to satisfy consumer requirements," the university economist believes.

"In reality, we are faced with underconsumption on a world-wide scale. In this perspective, it is mandatory for the agricultural producer to:

- "Understand the consumer and what motivates his buying behavior; anticipate changes by developing and marketing new products; and alter the structure of the marketing organization and practices so they may better serve the consumer."

Citing possible linkups of producer co-operatives to offer both variety and volume to food converter firms, Dr. Moulton said in some cases "we may see a type of joint activity in which large producer co-operatives assume responsibility for the production and processing of food products and the traditional food corporations assume sole responsibility for marketing and research."

The economist warned that the "independent producer who does not fit within this organization must identify specific market segments that he can serve, and this will require a high degree of market sensitivity."

Consumerism, Dr. Moulton said, "is a force that should be catered to, rather than resisted," because it "facilitates the expression of consumer demand for food, and any such move will help the farmer."

Olive Marketing Order Hearing

A public hearing to consider proposals for amending the federal marketing agreement and order program for olives grown in California was announced by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The hearing will begin at 9 a.m., March 3, in Courtroom No. 2 of the Federal Building, 1130 "O" Street, Fresno, California.

USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service officials said the hearing was requested by the Olive Administrative Committee, which administers the program would:

1. Define several new terms used in the marketing agreement and order.
2. Add authority for production research projects.
3. Change minimum size requirements for olives used for halved, sliced, chopped, or minced styles.
4. Authorize restrictions as to the percentage of available olives that may be used for halved, sliced, chopped or minced styles.
5. Provide new tolerances for the required sizes of whole ripe canning olives.

6. Revise the incoming regulations and require handlers of canned ripe olives to give notice to the committee prior to receiving olives for use as green or "tree-ripened" styles.

7. Amend the "interhandler transfer" provisions to regulate any handler who ships olives to handlers outside California.

8. Reallocate representation, between cooperative and independent handler organizations, on the Olive Administrative Committee.

C&MS officials said the hearing notice and proposals are being mailed to all known growers and handlers of California olives.

Copies also may be obtained from Joe Perrin, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Marketing Field Office, 1130 "O" St., Fresno, Calif. 93721, or from the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Consumer and Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

FROST WARNINGS OUT — Orchardists were alerted to probable frost this week and were seen out testing their equipment. In recent years the trend has been away from orchard heaters to 67 degree water sprinkling. Tehama County grower Courtney Bovee claims he covers his 90 acres more thoroughly with this system and no longer requires the help required when emergency strikes. The flick of a switch sets the operation going instantly, with no lag between rows.

Cranston Bills Would Permit Bargaining

Senator Alan Cranston, D-Calif., has co-sponsored two bills to give farmers the right to bargain collectively with processors and other commercial food buyers.

Both bills, the National Agricultural Bargaining Act and the National Agricultural Marketing Act, would grant farmers "greater economic muscle in the marketplace by giving them a better means of controlling the pricing and production policies under which they operate," Cranston said.

"Farmers presently are in a very poor economic position. Not only are they at the mercy of weather, blight, and insects, but they also have no control over the prices they will receive for their farm products," Cranston pointed out.

"Farmers are forced to accept whatever is offered by way of a market price or federal farm programs."

"This weak bargaining position has caused many American farmers to lag far behind other economic segments of our society. The general parity ratio of farm prices to the cost of production has reached a 37-year low."

"Although the cost of food for the consumer has continued to rise, farmers have not shared in this increase."

Cranston cited as an example the fact that the farmer receives only 2.7 cents for the wheat in a pound loaf of white bread, just 12 per cent of the retail price.

"Increasingly, the greater percentage of the total price for a food product goes to various middlemen — advertisers, shippers, processors and marketing specialists," the Senator said. "Housewives are paying more, but farmers are getting less."

As a result, farmers are increasingly being forced out of business. The number of farms in California decreased from 81,000 to 56,000 between 1964 and 1971 although the average acreage and value per farm in California rose.

The farmer bargaining bills co-sponsored by Senator Cranston were introduced by Senator Walter F. Mondale, D., Minn.). Similar legislation had been introduced in past years to stimulate discussion and debate over the merits of farmer bargaining power.

The Senate Agriculture Committee held exploratory hearings in 1968, but no legislation was reported. The California Senator indicated that he was co-sponsoring this legislation this year because, "I believe it is time to examine the specifics of this concept and to encourage reasoned debate on the benefits and problems associated with farmer bargaining."

"It is time to develop

workable legislation to provide farmers with the 'self-help tools' they need to enhance their economic position."

Cranston stressed that he is "not wedded to the specifics of either bill" but that he endorses "the principle of farmer bargaining."

The National Agricultural Bargaining Act would amend the National Labor Relations Act to follow for farmer bargaining to:

- Create an independent 5-member National Agricultural Relations Board to provide administrative, technical and supportive assistance to farmer Marketing Committees and buyers Purchasing Committees.
- Provide that when the price of a commodity was felt to be unfair, farmers could initiate a referendum, conducted by the board, to select a committee to negotiate fairer prices with a committee representing the purchasers of that commodity.

— Provide that if no agreement were reached, a 3-man "Joint Settlement Committee," comprised of a farmer, a purchaser, and a neutral party, would resolve the dispute. Their decision would be binding.

— Provide that the marketing committees could also recommend production and marketing controls which commodity producers could accept or reject in a second referendum.

The National Agricultural Marketing Act would provide for farmer bargaining through the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 to:

- Amend the Act to make any agricultural commodity eligible for a marketing order, if approved by producers of that commodity in a referendum.
- Provide for the establishment of minimum prices through collective bargaining between producers and purchasers as well as through the present hearing procedures conducted by the Secretary of Agriculture.

— Provide that prices would not be binding until approved by the handlers of 50 per cent of the volume of the commodity and by the Secretary.

— Provide that the Secretary would conduct all referendums as well as the authority outlined in current law.

Cranston emphasized that the bills are complementary, that Congress could enact one or both. He also stated that "the concept of farmer bargaining is not meant to supersede present farm programs, but to increase their effectiveness."

PRODUCT PROLIFERATION
A recent survey showed that 52 per cent of the food products currently on supermarket shelves were not there ten years ago; they are new products.

Pesticide Container Accumulation Cleanup March 8 Through 11

Pesticide containers are to be collected at the Tehama Agricultural Commissioner's Office grounds at 1760 Walnut St., Red Bluff, from March 8 through March 11.

Pesticide residue will be accepted for disposal at the same time.

That was the word this week from Agricultural Commissioner Donald R. Hill. It's part of a program to clean up accumulations of dangerous material and dispose of it in a safe manner.

The users are to take the containers and pesticide residue to the collection point. The containers are to be rinsed before delivery there.

Since Tehama County does not have an approved decontamination station or available transportation facilities, Hill explained, it becomes the task of the applicator, farmer or commercial operator to process and transport the containers. He gave these instructions:

After carefully reading labels

on containers, note whether any substantial concentrate remains in them. If any remains, it should be collected in a suitable container for transport to the Agricultural Commissioner's office.

This table is suggested by the State Department of Agriculture for rinsing empty containers: under 5 gallons, 1 pint of water and 1 tablespoon of detergent; 5 gallons, 2 quarts water, 2 tablespoons detergent; 15 gallons, 1.5 gallons water, 1/4 cup detergent; 30 gallons, 3 gallons water, 1/2 cup detergent; 55 gallons, 5 gallons water, 1 cup detergent.

Rinsing should be done carefully so as to avoid contact with the pesticides being treated. Rinse water may be disposed of in areas presenting no danger to persons, animals or water ways. Containers should be allowed to drain thoroughly.

After thorough draining, containers are to be taken to the Agricultural Commissioner's grounds from March 8 through

Mar. 11 for inspection and safe storage until being removed to the Red Bluff dump for final disposition.

Personnel at the dump are not authorized to accept containers for final disposition without clearance from the Agricultural Commissioner, he said, and the limited availability of equipment prevents their final disposition at the dump from being a continuous operation.

30 and 55 gallon drums, provided they are bung tight and in sound condition, may be brought to the Agricultural Commissioner's grounds for secure storage and later decontamination by a professional establishment.

In the future, all pesticide users are urged to rinse containers on the spot and to empty residues into spray apparatus, thus leaving containers in a much safer condition.

A final word of caution: Use special care when handling containers bearing the label "Poison" and the traditional skull and crossbones.

Promotion Campaign For Cling Peaches Begins On March 29

An "Action Now" promotion campaign for California canned cling peaches will be carried on by the Producers Canning Cling Advisory Board this spring, according to State Director of Agriculture Jerry W. Fielder.

The campaign will be financed entirely through assessments of California growers of cling peaches.

Primary objective of the program is to increase sales substantially during the 1971 spring selling season through greater consumer awareness of the value and versatility of canned cling peaches.

The television campaign will be carried on in 15 major markets across the United States during a six week period beginning March 29.

Market areas in California selected for the television campaign are Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Sacramento-Stockton-Modesto.

From 150 to 200 television spots are being scheduled in each of the 15 markets.

The California cling peach industry has been faced with an oversupply of the fruit, Fielder explained. The industry hopes to reduce the need for additional surplus control measures by attempting to gain wider use of the abundant supply of canned cling peaches in the American diet.

Canned peaches are on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's "Plentiful Foods" list for March.

California produces virtually all of the cling peaches grown in the United States.

Call Joint Meeting To Discuss Farm Chemical Pollution

How much, if any, does the use of agricultural chemicals contribute to environmental pollution?

This is the theme of a joint meeting sponsored by the Tehama County Farm Advisors' and Agricultural Commissioner's offices. The meeting will be held in the Red Bluff Union High School Cafeteria on Thursday, March 11, 1971, beginning at 8 p.m.

Tehama County Agricultural Commissioner Don Hill will discuss regulation of the uses of agricultural chemicals comparing current standards to previous and expected standards.

Farm advisors Ken Ellis, Joe Osgood, and Bill Richardson will discuss the current uses of agricultural chemicals and the outlook for future uses of these materials.

A panel representing chemical companies, farmers, regulating agencies, research agencies, and related fields will discuss questions from the audience.

Questions or topics for discussion can be sent to the Farm Advisors Office, P. O. Box 370 or the Agricultural Commissioner's Office, P. O. Box 38, both in Red Bluff.

The public is welcome according to farm advisor Joe Osgood.

MEAT BONANZA

U.S.D.A. findings show that beef, pork, lamb, veal, poultry, fish and eggs contribute over 40 per cent of the protein in the national diet. Beef ranked highest in consumption, followed by pork.

Farming Not On The Decline—Economist

REDDING — Farming on the decline in the United States? Not so, says Dr. Kirby Moulton, Agricultural Extension economist with the University of California, Berkeley. Fewer farmers — yes, but less farm opportunity, no.

Addressing the statewide convention of the California Young Farmers Association here, Dr. Moulton said that in the past 20 years the number of farms in the United States has declined 50 per cent — but these "often-quoted figures result primarily from the exodus of part-time and other marginal farm operations."

Since 1960, the economist said, there has been "an almost unbroken increase in the number of commercial-size operations," on a national scale.

The 1969 total of 568,000 farms realizing $20,000 or more in sales is 237 per cent of the 1960 total of only 240,000, said the university expert.

And although they represent only 19 per cent of all farms, these "commercial size" operations account for 59 per cent of farm income, he added.

"The implications of these figures is clear," said Dr. Moulton. "The commercial farm operation in the U. S. has become an increasing challenge, tending to attract operators, rather than to repel them."

"What of the future; will today's trends continue?" the economist asked.

Then he cited numerous forces that will influence farm income, farm profits, the conduct of farm business.

"They will change the very nature and quality of farm life itself," he said.

The major force that will shape agricultural business is the consumer, and to cope with this successfully, the structure of the agricultural economy "must become marketing-oriented," said the speaker. "Each one of us who is to survive must become an active part of the future marketing process."

Marketing still will serve the major food markets of today, the retail and the institutional, said Dr. Moulton, but the institutional — dealing with prepared meals for hospitals, schools, the armed forces, restaurants and similar organization — will account for a far larger share of total food sales than it does today. And much of this market will come from "food converter" firms, which will be producing frozen prepared meals.

"The most important problem in American agriculture today is to provide a sufficient quantity of the right products to satisfy consumer requirements," the university economist believes.

"In reality, we are faced with underconsumption on a world-wide scale. In this perspective, it is mandatory for the agricultural producer to:

"Understand the consumer and what motivates his buying behavior; anticipate changes by developing and marketing new products; and alter the structure of the marketing organization and practices so they may better serve the consumer."

Citing possible linkups of producer co-operatives to offer both variety and volume to food converter firms, Dr. Moulton said in some cases "we may see a type of joint activity in which large producer co-operatives assume responsibility for the production and processing of food products and the traditional food corporations assume sole responsibility for marketing and research."

The economist warned that the "independent producer who does not fit within this organization must identify specific market segments that he can serve, and this will require a high degree of market sensitivity."

Consumerism, Dr. Moulton said, "is a force that should be catered to, rather than resisted," because it "facilitates the expression of consumer demand for food, and any such move will help the farmer."

Golf Tips For V.P.

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — President Nixon offered one of his personally autographed golf balls to Vice President Agnew the other day. Smiling slyly, the President admonished Agnew not to use it "because I don't want to be blamed in case you hit somebody."

From the President on down, Agnew has been getting unsolicited golfing tips to help him keep his errant balls from beaming people.

For instance, 14-year-old Suzi Groman of Wantagh, N. Y., quoting her mother who "has taken lessons," urged the Vice President to stop "hitting behind the ball."

"I'm sure many innocent bystanders would be grateful," she wrote sweetly. Evidently recalling that Agnew had also bopped his tennis partner with a tennis ball, Suzi added solicitously: "Please, be very careful when you pick up a golf club or tennis racket. Gee, can you imagine what might happen if you took up baseball?"

A professional golfer, Ade Van Lier of Belmont, Mich., suggested that Agnew "take a hanky or small towel and place it under your left arm pit and keep it there until you hit the ball."

"These errant shots," diagnosed James H. Alexander of Pine Bluff, Ark., "were caused by your club face, when you struck the ball, being pointed toward those whom the ball hit."

"If you will stand a little closer to your ball when about to drive," suggested Percy C. Rogers of North Hampton, N. H., "shorten your backswing, keep your eye on the ball longer... you will not slice."

Michael Cornett of Culver, Ind., advised the Vice President to "take your right hand a little to the left and grip it a little tighter and spread your feet a little wider."

Paul Brandenberger of Danville, Ill., thought Agnew could improve his aim with "a bit of wrist action before your swing reaches the ball."

Edward J. Kaizer of Peoria, Ill., suggested the Vice President would do better if he would "relax your arms a bit and on the downswing do not try to 'kill' the ball." But confessed Kaizer: "I am a much better pianist and if you need advice on playing the piano, well..."

Spiro Agnew, if a trifle chagrined over his reputation as the world's most celebrated duffer, has accepted the hundreds of tips with grateful embarrassment.

PEACE CORPS RECORD

On Monday, the Peace Corps will be 10 years old.

What started out to be a shining ideal has accumulated a few bureaucratic barnacles. There have been mistakes, mismanagement, even some malfeasance.

Inept administrators have wrecked some programs. The "Peace Pipe" project to bring American Indians into the Corps turned out to be a fiasco. Other eager, young recruits sometimes have displayed more idealism than practical ability.

Yet in the anguish of Peace Corps girls on 48-hour nursing shifts in the Dominican Republic and the sweat of young men toiling in native villages from the Himalayas to the Andes, the world has caught a glimpse of America's best face.

The Peace Corps story can best be told in the small incidents that will fill the files.

Last August, for example, Ceylon shut down the Peace Corps' operations. Mrs. Lakshmi deZoysa, a 35-year-old Ceylonese mother, lost her job as a translator. Her baby boy, Gayan, suffered from a rare heart ailment. She watched in agony as he began to die by moments.

Several American specialists offered to perform open heart surgery on the baby, but Mrs. deZoysa couldn't raise the foreign currency to fly to the U. S. As the baby slowly began to turn blue, she wrote to Peace Corps Director Joe Blatchford begging for help. Her former boss in Ceylon, Stanley Reynolds, joined in the appeal.

RED TAPE STRANGLING

But the dying baby was strangling on red tape. There were no Peace Corps funds for the fare. American planes are forbidden by law to give free passage except "in the national interest."

The Corps appealed to the AFL-CIO whose gruff old president, George Meany, had cooperated quietly on other projects. He wrote to Joseph Sisco, an Assistant Secretary of State, urging that the deZoysa baby's survival be declared "in the national interest."

Since Mrs. deZoysa had been a Fulbright scholar in 1964, the Corps also contacted Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Will Fulbright, D-Ark., who cut the final strand of red tape. The State Department formally requested TWA and Delta to provide transportation.

The two airlines rushed the deZoysas and their baby to Houston where, on Jan. 20, little Gayan was taken immediately to the Texas Heart Institute. Famed surgeon Dr. Denton Cooley ordered batteries of tests and then operated on the child. Although he encountered complications, Gayan's life was saved, and his color is now normal.

Footnote: Mrs. deZoysa is teaching at night, and the Houston Bar Association is seeking work for her husband, a lawyer. The Church of Christ, meanwhile, is helping with expenses. Two Congressmen and a number of academics are trying to arrange for the deZoysas to stay in the U. S. until additional surgery can be performed. All so another Peace Corps dream can come true.

Attorney Misconduct

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The president of the state bar says the most pressing problem facing the legal profession is misconduct of attorneys.

The public will conclude that "self-policing is in reality self-protection" unless lawyers report unethical behavior among those in their field, Forrest A. Plant said Thursday.

He told a meeting of the San Diego County Bar Association that the most common form of unethical activity is misuse of clients' trust funds.

Plant cited a report issued last June by an American Bar Association committee headed by retired U. S. Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark which stated unethical lawyers have caused a "scandalous" situation across the country.

The report, he said, found procedures for enforcing ethical standards within the legal profession were "localized, decentralized and very fragmented" in most states.

The situation in California, Plant asserted, is different.

"Here in California, while we're not where we would like to be, we put our money where our mouth is."

The California bar, he noted, will spend $475,000 of its membership dues this year for 16 attorneys and 23 clerical and investigative personnel to handle complaints of misconduct.

"That's money lawyers are taking out of their pockets to spend on their own disciplinary matters," he said. "We know we have deficiencies, but we're making progress."

The organization is striving for ethical discipline, Plant said, but each lawyer must maintain his own high standards of conduct and report those who do not.

"If the 33,000 lawyers in California don't make that dedication," he said, "no organized bar structures can cope with the disciplinary problem."

Choice Of Death Ends With Blast From Bandit's Gun

OAKLAND (AP) — Dennis Duffy worked at an all night hamburger stand but hoped to join the Oakland Police Department.

To friends who asked him whether he thought it risky working alone through the night at a drive-in, the 21-year-old man said if he had his choice: "I'd rather be shot as a policeman than while frying hamburgers."

Late Wednesday night, the Laney College student was killed by a blast from a sawed-off shotgun by robbers who took $135.

FIGHTS EXTRADITION

DETROIT (AP) — Attorneys for convicted coed-slayer John Norman Collins filed suit Thursday in Federal District Court seeking to block Collins' extradition to California.

The 23-year-old Collins is wanted for the murder of a teenage girl in Monterey in June 1969.

Committeemen of the Eastern Tehama County Flood Control association at a meeting here today discussed preliminary steps to organize a soil conservation district for an area involving part of Antelope valley and the Los Molinos colony.

Purpose of setting up a district, committeemen said, would be to obtain without charge, a federal survey of the drainage system of the proposed district and to later obtain funds for flood control work.

Henry Schmitz, soil conservation service, outlined to the group that a conservation district is eligible for a survey and that U.S. flood control work would be carried out through the organization.

Approximately 10,000 acres of orchards and farm lands are involved in the proposed district, which is north of Mill creek and includes Salt creek, Big and Little Antelope creeks, Craig creek and several smaller streams.

Choice Of Death Ends With Blast From Bandit's Gun

OAKLAND (AP) — Dennis Duffy worked at an all night hamburger stand but hoped to join the Oakland Police Department.

To friends who asked him whether he thought it risky working alone through the night at a drive-in, the 21-year-old man said if he had his choice: "I'd rather be shot as a policeman than while frying hamburgers."

Late Wednesday night, the Laney College student was killed by a blast from a sawed-off shotgun by robbers who took $135.

FIGHTS EXTRADITION

DETROIT (AP) — Attorneys for convicted coed-slayer John Norman Collins filed suit Thursday in Federal District Court seeking to block Collins' extradition to California.

The 23-year-old Collins is wanted for the murder of a teenage girl in Monterey in June 1969.

Red Bluff Upsets Miners To Finish With 5-5 Mark

By GARY MORTENSON

Take momentum, confidence and a good home crowd, blend in some talent and a pinch of loyalty, simmer slowly in a basketball game and for Red Bluff High School at least, you have the ingredients of a winning effort.

Ending their season in class, the Spartans upset Yreka last night to even their record at 5-5 in Northern Athletic League play and boost their overall seasonal total to 12-9.

If not an artistic effort, it was certainly a pleasing win for coach Bernie Gleason, who hadn't managed to beat the Miners in three years — a span of seven straight games.

"We always play them close, but if they get out to the early lead, they're pretty hard to beat... they just sit on the ball."

For nine of the players, it was the final appearance in a Spartan basketball uniform, and seven of them managed to break into the scoring column as the team closed out the season with three consecutive wins.

Coach Gleason, who from the beginning of the season said that he didn't feel any team would go through the league unbeaten proved to be correct on that score, as Enterprise shot 55 percent from the field last night in defeating previously unbeaten Shasta, 67-59.

The final league standings looked like this:

Shasta	9 1
Anderson	6 4
Yreka	6 4
Red Bluff	5 5
Enterprise	4 6
Cent. Valley	0 10

In winning, Red Bluff led from the early moments, although Yreka managed to tie the score on a handful of occasions, including with 1:15 left in the third quarter at 33-all.

Those aforementioned seniors then did their bit, however, leading Red Bluff to a spurt of 13 straight points over the next six playing minutes, a period in which the Miners went ice cold.

Dave Ault started it off with a short jumper, but the crusher for Yreka came as the Spartans scored five points in the final 17 seconds of the period.

In a short amount of playing time, Jerry Hicks converted on three charity tosses and Larry Lyons stole one of his four passes during the night and then calmly dribbled up court to can a 12-foot jumper from the left with just two seconds showing on the clock.

Some beautiful assists kept the Spartans moving as the fourth quarter began, with Curt Perry taking a Murray Wilson pass for a layup to get it rolling again.

After Lyons sank a 20-footer, the Red Bluff five countered a zone defense by doing a little "sitting on the ball" of their own, holding it better than a minute until Hicks nailed Lyons on a drive for an easy layup.

That made it 46-33, and the Miners, for all intents, were finished.
Playing their final game were co-captains Ault and George Pettinger, Scott Smith, Perry, Hicks, Wilson, Lyons and Phil Mackey.

NON-CONTACT-SPORT, MY EAR! — The theory in basketball is that as little contact as possible is supposed to be made. Sometimes, however, the principles of the game do not always work out well as these photographs demonstrate. On the left, possession of the ball is the goal of both Red Bluff High School's Dave Ault (in the glasses) and Yreka's Ken Dooley, but it turned into what resembled a wrestling match, with Ault scoring the take down. On the right, Dooley again seems to be having hard luck in escaping from a Red Bluff player, this time Scott Smith. If a close look is taken, it is evident that the Spartan didn't want Dooley to leave, because Smith is holding the Yreka player's ear with one hand and Dooley's baby finger with the other. Red Bluff went on to win the game by a score of 52-44.

Spartans Grab Share Of Jayvee Cage Title

With four men scoring in double figures, Red Bluff High School's junior varsity team retained its share of first place in the Northern Athletic League last night when the Spartans downed Yreka, 66-60, to earn a co-championship.

Enterprise was edging Shasta at the same time, 54-52, to stay tied with coach Hugh Mills' team, both with final 8-2 records.

Jumping into an early lead, Red Bluff found itself outgunned at the end of the first quarter to fall behind by nine points, 19-10.

But the second-quarter was a turnaround, as the Spartans erupted for a 25-7 explosion and held a 35-26 lead at halftime.

Yreka hadn't thrown in the towel yet, however, and at one juncture in the fourth quarter had closed the Red Bluff lead to just four points, 57-53.

Two consecutive jumpers from the right corner by Craig Grim moved the Spartans back into a safe lead.

High scorer in the game was Yreka's Mike Conway with 20, but two Red Bluff players had 14 and two more 13 to pace the balanced attack.

Score by quarters:

Yreka	19 7 13 21 - 60
Red Bluff	10 25 14 17 - 66

Leading scorers: Conway (Y) 20, Alameda (Y) 15, Smith (RB) 14, Grim (RB) 14.

BLOOMIN' GOOD YEAR

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Flowers are in full bloom at Hialeah's race course.

Track superintendent Angelo Testa has worked since last March to make certain the track's 100,000 bougainvillea, begonias and chrysanthemums would be ready for the 40-day meeting which ends March 3.

Corning Jayvees Win League Crown With Victory Over Gridley

If anyone would have told Corning Junior Varsity coach Don Lewis on the first day of the month that his team would have wrapped up the title going into the last game of the season, he probably would have deemed them "touched."

At that point in the season, the Cardinals were 2-2 in the circuit and one-and-half games out of a first-place tie shared by Del Oro and Wheatland.

Since then, Corning has come on to win six straight games, including last night's drubbing of Gridley, 54-31, while the remainder of clubs knocked each other off.

Tonight, the Cards will travel to Del Oro for a game Lewis had hoped would be for the crown.

Lewis doesn't have to worry about that anymore.

Score by quarters:

Gridley	9 17 14 - 31
Corning	18 21 7 8 - 54

Leading scorers: Matt Odom (C) 15, Nick Coatney (C) 14.

REACH FOR THE SKY — After stealing the ball midway through the fourth quarter, Glen Wilson of Red Bluff High School's junior varsity team glides in for layup to aid Spartans in 66-60 victory over visiting Yreka, giving the club a tie for the league championship with Enterprise, which narrowly escaped defeat in its game with Shasta, 54-52.

Nicklaus Leads PGA, Geiberger Shoots 69

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Shooting a second-round 69, Al Geiberger, honored in Tehama County two weeks ago, kept on the pace of hot-shooting Jack Nicklaus, who carted his second straight three-under par to lead the 53rd PGA championship by two strokes with 36 holes to go.

On the doorstep of golf's first double grand slam, powerful Nicklaus scoffs at claims that he's over the hill at age 31.

"My peak's ahead," said the golden bear. "I'm as hungry for my next major championship as I was for my first."

"I've never led a major even all four rounds," admitted the Ohio strongboy. "Who cares? All I want is to be on top late Sunday afternoon."

Nicklaus has already won three Masters titles, two apiece in the U.S. and British Opens and the 1963 PGA Championship. Another triumph in the PGA would top off the game's first double slam.

"That's pretty much newspaper stuff," said Nicklaus of two-timing the slam. "It would be nice, but what I want most is to win more big championships than anybody."

Nicklaus now has 10, one behind old-timer Walter Hagen and three off the record of 13 by legendary amateur Bobby Jones.

Not bad for a fellow Sam Snead said would "burn himself out at an early age."

Two shots behind Jack at the PGA's 36-hole mark was balding Texan Miller Barber, who shot

68 Friday for a 140 total on the 7,096-yard PGA National Club course.

Gibby Gilbert, from nearby Hollywood, Fla., shot the tournament's lowest round with 67 to move three under par at 143.

Chubby Bob Murphy birdied the first five holes Friday before settling down en route to a 68 that left the former U.S. amateur king at 142, four behind the Nicklaus pace.

Tied with Murphy at 142 were Larry Ziegler, 68; long-hitting Tom Weiskopf, 70; Bob Lunn, 70; Australian Bruce Devlin, 71; unknown club pro Gene Borek of East Norwich, N.Y., 70, and old pro Lionel Hebert, 70.

Geiberger has a two-day total of 143.

Cardinals Travel For Final League Contest

Corning High School will try to do something no other club in the Westside League has done this year when they travel to Del Oro tonight — knock off the front-running Golden Eagles.

It's a 100-to-one shot at best, but the Cardinals showed last night against Gridley that for a given period of time, they can play with anyone.

Corning stuck with the taller Bulldogs for three quarters, closed the gap to two points in the third period and trailed by only four at the end of three stanzas.

But the final eight minutes was all Gridley, as Mark Olsen and Ed Parker equally divided 16 points as the Bulldogs outscored the Cards by a 27-10 margin to account for the final 21-point margin.

Red Bluff Frosh Go Into Overtime To Defeat Yreka

Doug Smith scored 27 points and Jim Morris and Bob Nott played good floor games to lead Red Bluff High School's freshmen team to an overtime win over Yreka yesterday, 52-47.

Trailing by nine points at halftime, the Spartans out-shot Yreka by a 15-3 margin in the third quarter to take a one-point lead, and then went into overtime when the Miners outscored the Spartans 15-14 in the final period.

In the overtime, Red Bluff outscored the visitors by a 7-2 margin to capture the win.

Bidwell Wins Game

Bidwell School's eighth grade team advanced to the second round of the Westside League tournament today when the Bulldogs downed Central Valley, 28-16.

Playing at Central Valley High School, coach Phil Trujillo's club advanced to a game this morning with Anderson, hoping for a spot in the finals this afternoon with Cottonwood.

The seventh graders were beaten by the Cottonwood "B" team, 45-18.

Weight Watching Is Methodical Work

"Weights and Measures Week" officially starts Monday, but the Tehama County Division responsibility for keeping weights straight goes on year round under Agricultural Commissioner Don Hill.

Developments in packaging and marketing in recent years have caused a shift in emphasis in Weights and Measures enforcement work.

As more types, sizes and shapes of packages are available each year such things as net content and label statements take on more importance and consume more of the Weights and Measures inspector's time.

But still the core and primary function of these inspectors is the testing of scales and meters.

Every January 1st their job starts all over again. The list is consulted and they set forth with the aim of testing every commercial weighing and measuring device in the county by December 31st.

This routine might sound repetitious but it actually isn't.

Businesses move, close, or shift emphasis.

They buy new equipment or discard old. New businesses start up or new people are involved.

While all testing is planned around weather conditions, travel conditions, convenience or economy for testing personnel and equipment and the convenience of device owners, there are unusual circumstances that arise.

You might see an inspector braced against a cold north wind trying to read a cement scale balance indicator while the mixer trucks line up waiting for that first load.

Or perhaps an entire prune receiving plant standing on collectively one foot while the inspector nervously stacks weights on a dormant platform scale.

But maybe the worst is when 100 cows line up and start complaining about a late milking because the inspector is making that last adjustment to the farm milk tank.

EYE ON BALL — Compton tests a gas pump for accuracy.

CHECKING THE SIZES — The department keeps a keen watch on packaging. It acts swiftly if a box is deliberately misleading in relation to contents. There is nothing wrong with the boxes illustrated above, the net weight is clearly indicated on the packages. But it's worth noting that the smaller box containing 28 ounces of converted rice carries almost three times the content of the big package with only 11 ounces inside. This section is particularly concerned with consumer protection and has been responsible for much reform.

A WEIGHTY PROJECT — Bob Compton, an inspector with the department, set himself the task of machining down this official set of weights from a metal bar he bought at a Sacramento war surplus store.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am 11 years old and live in White Plains. Last year I went crazy over the clarinet. The music teacher said I should use the school clarinet until she decided if I had any talent. After two months the teacher said I might turn out to be another Benny Goodman so I begged my mother to buy me a clarinet. She talked it over with my father and they agreed to rent one.

After three months of playing on a rented clarinet I begged my folks to buy me a really good instrument for my very own. On my birthday they bought me a brand new clarinet for $81.

Then summer came and I got interested in swimming and playing ball. I sort of forgot about the clarinet. We had several arguments about not practicing. My teacher told Mom there was no sense in paying for lessons if I refused to practice. Now I don't care much for the clarinet and I want to take up drums. My mother is having fits. The teacher is on Mom's side because they already have a couple of good drummers in the school band and they need clarinets worse. Is this fair?

—LINED UP AGAINST

Dear Lined: You bet it's fair. Your folks have invested $81 in a clarinet because you wanted it. Now you'd better get re-interested and live up to your end of the bargain. If your folks let you switch to drums you'll probably fall in love with the tuba.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been a widow for several years and 90 per cent of my mail comes addressed to Mrs. Mary Smith. I also use that form as my signature. I have a friend of long standing whose husband passed away recently, and I addressed some mail to her as Mrs. Jane Doe. She immediately called me on the phone and reprimanded me for not having addressed her mail to Mrs. John Q. Doe. I told her if I was wrong I would apologize since I did not care to end a friendship of forty years over such a trivial matter. We have agreed to leave the decision to you. Who is right?

—WANTS TO KNOW

Dear W.T.K.: She's right. Customary form for a widow is to use her husband's name. Since a divorced woman drops her husband's name, most widows are pretty sticky about this detail. They want the world to know they are sod and not grass.

I agree with you, however, it's not worth breaking up a 40 year friendship over. Kiss and make up, girls.

Dear Ann Landers: I was appalled by the letter from the woman who couldn't give her pregnant sister a reason for pre-natal care.

Any expectant mother who cannot afford a private physician should look into the services offered by the local clinics. There are many complications of pregnancy which may not be apparent to the lay person. Some of these complications can be fatal to both the woman and her child. By the time she realizes something is wrong it could be too late.

In some cities a private physician will refuse to deliver a woman who has had no pre-natal care if she calls him for the first time when the labor pains start. It's too risky. Moreover, most obstetricians have a flat fee for pre-natal care and delivery. The woman doesn't save anything by cutting out the pre-natal care. Thanks for letting me sound off. I hope I've helped.

'Adam 12' Receives Higher Rating In New Time Slot

NEW YORK (AP) — Viewers who enjoy watching Chief Ironside and company solving crimes probably will sit still for another half hour watching more cops round up miscreants.

That apparently was the way NBC figured things when it moved "Adam 12" out of Saturday nights into Thursday just before Dean Martin's variety hour.

It seems they were right. "Adam 12" in what the industry calls "a hammock position" between two popular programs is building higher ratings than any time during the previous two seasons.

The 30 minutes usually involve three or four cases supposedly encountered by a patrol car team of Los Angeles police — played by Martin Milner and Kent McCord — during a tour of duty.

"The Dean Martin Show" is beginning to show signs of age and to lean a little heavily on the star's personality. And the star apparently thinks that if he sings a couple of songs and reads painfully from his cue cards he has done enough.

Karen Black Signed

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Karen Black has been signed by producer Gerald Ayres for a starring role in "Dealer," a film about two young people attempting to survive the contemporary Los Angeles scene. The actress recently won acclaim for her role in "Five Easy Pieces."

Bigotry Theme Well Shown On Bonanza

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Bonanza," NBC's long-playing family Western, is hardly a crusading series but it came up with an effective drama with the theme of bigotry.

The hour belonged to Dean Jagger, not the regular stars of the series. He played a retired general, a Civil War hero returning to Nevada to settle down. Just as his town was to be re-named in the general's honor, he was involved in shooting an Indian he claimed was stealing his horses.

The general was such an upstanding character that even Ben Cartwright was urging him to run for governor. At that point, however, it began to be revealed that the man's character was flawed by a psychopathic hatred of Indians — "We should have killed them all," he finally exploded as Ben looked shocked.

Of course, he finally got his come-uppance — an Indian spear in the back — but it was a good action story and made some points rather neatly.

The series, rolling along smoothly for more than a decade, usually has pretty good scripts and there is an interesting mix of characters. It was notable, too, that Loren Greene was almost incidental to the story, Michael Landon played a bit part and Dan Blocker, the third star, was included only in a scene or two.

"Hogan's heroes" on CBS and "The Bill Cosby Show" on NBC are two half-hour programs which seem likely to disappear at the end of this season.

The five-year-old comedy series about hi-jinx in a World War II German prisoner of war camp has pretty well milked the situation of its humorous potential. Bob Crane and his merry crew each week evolve some new way to make bigger boobs of their German captors than they — Werner Klemperer as a vain colonel and John Banner as a nervous sergeant — make of themselves.

In its early Sunday evening spot, the series has a large children's audience although its toughest competition, "The Wonderful World of Disney" attracts the same age group.

"The Bill Cosby Show, after only two seasons, will be more of a loss. It has had difficult sledding in a position opposite the second half of ABC's popular "FBI" and CBS's "Ed Sullivan Show." The half hour usually relies on a sly, understated humor and has a sort of spontaneous quality.

This week's Disney show — a rerun — was actually a 1962 movie called "Moon Pilot," and showed its age by its theme — sending an astronaut around the moon — and by sequences showing a movie-maker's idea of the recovery of a space ship. Since then, the public has seen the real thing — and it's better.

Some Censorship Deplored By Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Dinah Shore, discussing with Johnny Carson life in televisionland, complained mildly that NBC censors had "beeped" — erased — references by a guest on her daytime show to an expensive San Francisco restaurant and to a brand of French wine that sells for $15 a bottle.

"I guess they thought they were free plugs," said Dinah. "But when I had quite a discussion with the author of 'The Sensuous Woman,' they never touched a word. Bureau of standards, where were you when I needed you?"

It was an interesting question. Sometimes the viewer wonders if network censors bother to check the exchange on daytime game shows which often are deliberately risqué, many times started or egged on by the host.

Television, however, has gradually been shedding restraints. "Hell" and "damn," once automatically erased from tapes, are now more frequent than even the commercial breaks on the late evening talk shows. Frank discussions of sex abound on the daytime shows.

Some of the recent made-for-TV movie features and even the series now are explicit in dealing with venereal disease, abortion, illicit relations, perversion and drug abuse.

The educational network recently left a brief nude scene in the movie "Marat-Sade."

Purest areas of television are the situation comedies — no cuss words, no forbidden subject.

But wasn't it Billy Wilder who said he was looking for the day when they stopped using four-letter words and got back to a three-letter word: wit.

NOSTALGIC FILMS

For the past few weeks, the educational stations have been evolving nostalgia for the depression-torn 1930s with a series of dramas fixing the mood of the times.
